

TIM LABENDA

Spring/Summer 2016

Tim Labenda is a German designer, living and working in Berlin Kreuzberg.

His Spring/Summer 2016 Collection WANDERLUST deals with the restlessness and flexibility of today's society. Fulfilled with the desire of change and development and also driven by opportunities that could wait anywhere at any time, people request local unboundness.

Inspired by nomads, people on the tramp and travelers in general, a collection occurred, that invites you with overloaded pockets to carry all your belongings on the body. The sensation of freedom paired with the feeling of having no ballast in form of property, and the possibility to carry all your belongings with yourself, was the idea that Tim wanted to illustrate within this collection.

It allows you to float totally detached and it also gives you the privilege, to go wherever you want at any time, without worrying about pulling up stakes.

The summery, natural, sandish colour pallet, cut through different shades of blue, is grounded by white and black. It conveys the colour play of the circuitousness of desert and ocean. The different textures and surfaces of the fabrics provide a haptic experience. Linen as major material reflects the airiness and recklessness of the collection. At the same time it assimilates itself perfectly in different facets to the relative silhouettes.

The fundament of the TIM LABENDA women collection is still based on the classical gentlemen's tailoring, fit and quality of the fabrics as well as the perfect craftsmanship. Building on this, Tim plays with the silhouettes and cutting lines to create an elegant, effortless and self-evident look.
